INDONESIA TEA CATALOG

A close-up photograph of white tea leaves, showing their intricate, twisted, and slightly curled structure. The leaves are a mix of light beige and dark brown colors, indicating they have been processed. The background is a plain, light color, making the tea leaves stand out.

White Tea

Code : IWP0100025

Young leaves or new growth buds that have undergone minimal oxidation through a slight amount of withering before halting the oxidative processes by being baked dry, with the optimal withering conditions at 30 Celcius (65% relative humidity) for 26 hours.

Link : <https://madeinindonesia.com/white-tea-en-2/>

Oolong Tea

Code : IWP0100028

The tea oxidation is stopped somewhere between the standards for green tea and black tea. The processing typically takes 2 to 3 days from withering to drying with a relatively short oxidation period of several hours. In Chinese, semi-oxidized teas are collectively grouped as blue tea while the term “oolong” is used specifically as a name for certain semi-oxidized teas. Common wisdom about lightly oxidized teas in Taiwan (a large producer of Oolong) is that too little oxidation upsets the stomach of some consumers..

Black Tea

Code : IWP0100029

The tea leaves are allowed to completely oxidize. Black tea is first withered to induce protein breakdown and reduce water content (between 68% and 77% of original). The leaves then undergo a process known in the industry is “disruption” or “leaf maceration”, which through bruising or cutting disrupts leaf cell structures, releasing the leaf juices and enzymes that activate oxidation.

Green Tea

Code : IWP0100026

This tea has undergone the least amount of oxidation. The oxidation process is halted by the quick application of heat after tea picking, either with steam, the Japanese method, or by dry cooking in hot pans, the traditional Chinese method.

Moringa Tea / Teh Daun Kelor

Code : IWP0100002

Moringa tea is rich in catechin polyphenols, especially epigallocatechin gallate (EGCG) which is a strong anti-oxidant that inhibits the growth of cancer cells. Moringa tea is also effective in lowering LDL cholesterol levels, as well as inhibiting the formation of abnormal blood clots. Moringa tea can increase energy naturally and is a great source of nutrients. Increased energy after drinking Moringa Tea does not occur due to sugar, so it lasts for a long time.

Black tea bags

Code : 8991004018141

Black tea is a product that attracts consumers because it contains many benefits for preventing several diseases such as diabetes, gout, maintaining body stamina and increasing immunity if taken without sugar, while millennials like black tea as a drink for young people with various flavors mixed with milk, oranges, and ice cubes and black tea powder, it is very economical and also more practical with a dip pack to take to the office
